

New Building Planned

Plans for building a new 1¼ million-dollar Science Building west of the Fine Arts Center are now well under way.

A committee composed of Dr. J. O. Chellevold, dean of faculty, Dr. Elmer Hertel, Biology Department; and Dr. A. W. Swensen, Chemistry, has made a survey of the science faculty and determined the department needs.

The architect and this committee have looked at a number of science buildings in Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota and have conferred with Dr. Lewis from the National Science Foundation.

From the data collected, drawings have been completed incorporating the needs of the Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Psychology and Mathematics Departments.

Accordingly, a four-story building, covering 60 thousand square feet, with many classrooms, storage rooms, new departments, laboratories, plus a 250-capacity auditorium, a greenhouse and in the future a planetarium, is becoming a reality.

Science Review Committee met on the Wartburg campus last Wednesday to work out further considerations.

Arrangements were made for an alumni drive which will raise funds for the building.

Outlined was an alumni drive consisting of three phases:

First phase is the Alumni Incentive Committee, headed by Pres. C. H. Becker, which will kick off the drive by obtaining large contributions.

Second phase, Alumni Special Interest Committee, will be headed by the Rev. Merritt Bomhoff, assistant to the president, in the area of public relations. This committee will direct its efforts toward those alumni who have received their professional training through the Science Department here at Wartburg.

Third phase, the General Soliciting Committee, will work in the area of general gifts. These three committees will be co-ordinated by a Central Committee of general supervision.

Bomhoff has reported that the individuals on these specific committees will be announced during homecoming week-end.

Those in charge have expressed hope that the above alumni plan will raise 300 thousand dollars during the next three years. In addition, through the Development Office, 325 thousand dollars will be raised.

Construction on the Science Building will begin when this sum of 625 thousand dollars is assured through cash and pledges.

Committee To Head English Dept.

ALC Confab Set

Amidst the mounting pressures of a new school year, plans are taking shape for the fall 1963 ALC Student Conference.

This year the gathering is to take place during the Thanksgiving recess at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio. The theme is "The Christian Witness in Your Culture" and will involve a discussion by numerous foreign exchange students on the subject of relationship of faith and culture.

More information shall be forthcoming. Students may contact the Wartburg campus co-ordinator, Margaret Judt, senior, for further information on how they may become delegates.

Miss Erna Moehl, the Rev. Neil Eckstein and Dr. P. A. Kildahl have been named to the administrative committee of the English Department by Dr. John O. Chellevold, dean of faculty.

The committee temporarily fills the vacancy made by the death of Dr. E. T. Sandberg, late head of the English Department.

Miss Moehl will be the first chairman of the Administrative Committee. Chairmanship will be divided between Miss Moehl, the Rev. Mr. Eckstein and Dr. Kildahl.

"No new English Department head will be named until the fall of '64," said Dr. Chellevold.

Miss Cora Ebert will rejoin the Wartburg faculty after retiring last spring. She will be teaching a freshman English class, and Dr. G. J. Neumann will take over the class for superior students, formerly taught by Dr. Sandberg.

Mr. John M. Solensten will be teaching the American Novel, formerly taught by Dr. Sandberg. The 18th Century English Prose and Poetry class has been discontinued.

Prof. Dies

Services for Dr. Edwin T. Sandberg, head of the English Department, were held Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the Chapel-auditorium. Burial took place at

Dr. E. T. Sandberg

Oakwood Cemetery, Red Wing, Minn.

Death came to Dr. Sandberg, 42, at 1:30 a.m. Sunday, Sept. 22, at the University Hospital in Iowa City. Cause of death was a heart attack.

During his life, Sandberg was a member of the National Council of Teachers of English, American Association of University Professors and a member of Phi Alpha Theta.

Sandberg graduated from Red Wing High School, received his B.S. degree from the University of Minnesota in 1943; M. A. from the same university in 1945; and his Ph.D. from Indiana University in 1951.

He was the author of numerous published articles and poems.

Dr. Sandberg came to Wartburg in 1953, and in 1961 became head of the English Department.

Surviving are his wife, Evelyn, and daughter, Ellen, 12.

Convo To See Worship, Film

Convocations this week will include a worship service and an introduction to one of the major areas of this year's theme, "Freedom / Security: the Human Dilemma."

Tuesday, Pastor Herman Diers will conduct the worship service concerning the Christian's commitment not only to make good use of the world, but also to enjoy it. This address will acquaint students with the freedom and security the world can give.

A series of convocations concerning genetics and eugenics will begin on Thursday, Oct. 3, and continue during the month of October. The first program will feature a film entitled "The Thread of Life." Produced by the Bell Telephone Company, the film will provide a basic introduction to the science of genetics.

Church To Accept Campus Members

New members of the student congregation will officially be accepted Sunday, Sept. 29, at the morning worship service, according to an announcement make by Jim Reents, evangelism chairman.

Those who miss this service may become members on Wednesday at the 6:30 chapel service.

Pops Concert Oct. 29

By Kathy Piotter

Fall Pops Concert, scheduled for Oct. 29, will feature The Smothers Brothers, nationally known folk-singer comedians, according to Rog Sherman, Pops Concert chairman.

Only a few years ago, Tom and Dick Smothers were a pair of talented, but unknown, singing comics, performing in their home town Bistro, San Francisco's "Purple Onion."

It was there that Mercury records discovered the brothers and waxed their first album, "The Smothers Brothers at the Purple Onion." Within a few weeks they were a smashing success.

Tom Smothers, the bewildered talkative brother and guitarist, is 25 years old and one year older than Dick, who plays bass and patiently tries to get his fumbling brother back on the intellectual beam.

In private life, Dick Smothers has been married for three years and has a two-year-old daughter. Tom, until recently a "non-confirmed" bachelor, has now joined the married ranks.

But marriage hasn't changed Tom. He speaks in a nervous, distracted double talk that has him singing off key, stumbling over big words, muffling lines and eternally upstaging Dick.

Meanwhile Dick, who has the look of a round-faced cherub, tries valiantly to cope with Tom's mental meanderings.

Student Overwhelmed At U.S. Friendliness

By Marvin Ackerman

"I was really disappointed at not seeing anything of New York but the suburbs. I didn't even see any tall buildings or the Statue of Liberty."

This was the comment of Miss Sys (Shish) Andersen, sophomore foreign exchange student from Denmark, as she flew from her home country. She arrived in America last Thursday.

"Everyone is friendly here. In Denmark one could walk around a university all day, and no one would tell you what to do or where to go. Even the professors are willing to help a student here," she said.

Sys feels that this difference is due to the campus community and also that it is due to the Wartburg family tradition.

"Do you know how you can tell an American in Europe?" she asked. "They wear white socks and white tennis shoes much of the time. No one wears white socks in Europe, and tennis shoes are worn only during athletic events."

Sys, who has taken English for seven years, is also able to read and understand German, French, Latin, Swedish, Norwegian and Danish.

Planning someday to teach English in Denmark, she is taking American literature, American history, English composition, religion and physical education.

"Schools in Denmark cannot compare with the schools in America. There is no campus, no student advisers, but there are unlimited cuts and very few tests," she said.

Later comments included the facts that the tests are comprehensive in nature. In the field of English one is given a test at the end of two years of study and another at the end of four years.

Wartburg students should undoubtedly be glad to go to school in America. In Denmark it take seven years to get a B.A., approximately seven more to get an M. A. and around five more to get a Ph.D. This is a total of approximately nineteen years to get the three degrees.

She added that Louis Armstrong is the most popular American jazz musician there. T. S. Eliot is her own favorite English writer.

Before coming to Wartburg, she went to the Gymnasium of Hellerup and hopes to continue her studies at the University of Copenhagen.

"My favorite extracurricular activities are reading, music and sports, but reading excels all the others," she commented.

Having never seen a football game except on television, Sys is looking forward to the next home football game. Danish football is comparable to American soccer.

Although she didn't see much of America on her way to Waverly, she hopes to see more of this "beautiful American country" before going home.

"I at least want to go to Yellowstone Park," she added.

TAKING A study break from the new activities which present themselves to her, Sys Andersen, sophomore exchange student from Denmark, seems to be enjoying the task.

Death's Door Opened

Dr. E. T. Sandberg will no longer be among faculty and students on the Wartburg campus. Death knocked and Dr. Sandberg answered the call.

As a teacher, Dr. Sandberg contributed a great deal to Wartburg College and the intellect of Wartburg students. Dr. Sandberg demanded excellence. He upgraded the English Department with quality instead of quantity.

Dr. Sandberg is responsible for the honors seminar, bachelor's thesis, oral exam for English majors, reading requirement of classical books and revamping of freshman English to a humanities course.

He also held experimental sessions with accelerated English students and promoted independent study.

His duties as adviser were performed with conscientious effort. As head of the English-Speech-Journalism Departments he was always willing to give help and advice to the publications.

Outstanding effort can be seen in the success of KWAR, student radio station. He was also a supporter of the art-movie festival and the English lecture series.

Dr. Sandberg was an excellent administrator as head of the English-Speech-Journalism Department. He held teachers to a high standard of work. He found it possible to look to the future in spite of the present.

As a human being, Dr. Sandberg is perhaps most admired and respected. Like Paul, the missionary, Dr. Sandberg bore a thorn in the flesh. His poor health and eyesight constantly plagued him.

As President Becker said at his funeral, it was with a Herculean effort sometimes that he performed his duties. He was a man of tremendous courage.

Dr. Sandberg never complained about his health or his work, but was looking for more ways to serve. He was a man who cultivated a taste for what is beautiful in everybody's life as well as in his own.

Music, literature, poetry and speaking were fields in which Dr. Sandberg possessed a great talent.

Dr. Sandberg, teacher, administrator, adviser and talented human being, courageously shared his abilities with others.

Death has spoken the last word, but there is one more word — RESURRECTION.

Did You Write Home?

Upperclassmen, when was the last time you wrote a letter home? Perhaps even the freshmen owe Mother and Dad a letter.

Our parents' lives have been centering around us for 18 years, and suddenly we are gone; at least it seems suddenly to them. Perhaps they have been saving many years for our college education. How may we show them our appreciation?

One way is by sharing a little bit of our college life with them through correspondence. Most parents would be very happy to receive word from their son or daughter.

The idea that you at least are thinking about them may give parents some reward.

If you wonder what to write about, here are a few suggestions: Tell them about an inspiring convocation last week; give them the highlights of the football game; tell them about the Smothers Brothers coming for our fall pops concert. Do they know you bought new curtains for your room? Mother would be happy to hear that, fellows.

Homecoming is not too far away, and you might tell them a little about Wartburg social life. Maybe you just want to get a few things off your chest and gripe a little. Our parents are really interested in us.

Why don't you drop them a card today and tell them you'll write them a nice long letter Sunday afternoon?

Nelson Meyer Compares Wartburg

By Nelson Meyer,
Student Body President

If you were in convo last Tuesday, you undoubtedly saw this question, "Do you think there is anything special or distinctive about students at this college as compared with students at most other American colleges?"

This reminded me of a similar question, "Is there anything special or distinctive about Wartburg College as compared with most other American colleges?"

This question was one I could not avoid while I attended the National Student Association's Student Body Presidents' Conference this summer at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

Meyer

There were about three hundred SBP's there, representing schools of all sizes and affiliations from all over the United States. I soon realized that not all schools have the same problems.

Some schools have a Student Government budget of over $30,000. At other schools, groups of students have actually taken the school to court for infringement of rights.

Some schools (such as San Francisco State, where "Operation Abolition" was filmed) have full-scale riots when they want something, while others (such as many small Catholic girls' schools) have no recourse but to obey the administration's edicts.

Where is Wartburg? I believe we compare quite well with other schools, and I must admit that even I had my eyes opened to many things I had taken for granted.

Many of the schools, even large schools, are presently having difficulty with speaker bans which prohibit certain speakers from speaking on campus. Often speakers objected to are Communists.

There was much discussion concerning the right of schools to do this, although this is practiced in most Roman Catholic schools in a strict manner.

I think that this points out something which Wartburg has to be proud of. Although we, too, are religiously affiliated, not only has a man from the Russian Embassy spoken on our campus, but also a Jewish rabbi and a Roman Catholic priest.

The fact that men of different political and religious beliefs were invited to speak at a required convocation says something, I believe, for the presence of freedom and the absence of dogmatism at our institution.

Concerning freedom, I was also surprised in the area of elections. We have a relatively high percentage of student body vote (up to 80%) at elections. However, many of the other schools represented not only required students to attend all student body meetings, but they were required to vote in every election.

This made me positive that all religiously affiliated schools cannot be equated.

Having student members on 10 student-faculty committees such as we have, I found, was unusual for any school. All were astonished to hear that each of these students had a vote, and that there was no faculty veto over their vote.

What was even more remarkable to the other schools was that we have a student representative on the Education Policies Committee and on the Board of Regents' Building Committee.

I talked to SBP's from large schools such as the University of Minnesota, to those from small schools of four hundred or less, and not one could match the representation our student government has obtained.

I have sometimes felt that living conditions, at least in the past, have been too restricted at Wartburg. Upon talking to the student body president from Notre Dame University, however, I decided that at least some amount of reconsideration is in order.

It was only three years ago that men there had 10:30 p.m. hours with 12 midnight three nights a week. Moreover, they were required to sign in on a "wake-up sheet" between 7 and 7:15 a.m. three mornings a week.

Furthermore, all electricity to the dorms was cut off at 11 p.m., so that no lights, clocks or electrical units of any kind were operational. At the present time, things are better, however, but men still have 12 o'clock hours with 1 a.m. hours on Saturday.

I believe that the conference was most valuable because it gave me a new perspective of student government at Wartburg.

I do not know whether you have changed your mind about anything since you started reading, and perhaps you won't, but I think that these comparisons are at least worth evaluating.

A Friend Speaks

To The Editor:

A friend has died. I suspect that by now much has been said about what Dr. Sandberg did for Wartburg as a brilliant and energetic faculty member.

But I also suspect that another side has been neglected. Dr. Sandberg as a human being. Few people knew him as such; I was one of them. To me, he was a friend, and "Friend" is a powerful word.

Dr. Sandberg was a highly sensitive man, so sensitive that he had to build a wall around himself for protection. To many people, this wall was Dr. Sandberg. The wall could be pleasant, or it could be foreboding and even cynical.

But the wall was artificial.

I think this reveals itself in one of the two precepts of Dr. Sandberg's personal philosophy: never to deliberately hurt anyone. By this, he meant never to force anyone to say or do anything against his will.

But it is one of the tragic things in life that this cannot always be carried through, and Dr. Sandberg was subject to human tragedy because he was human. The other precept of his philosophy was to continue to learn.

I owe a great debt to Dr. Sandberg that shall only be increased by time. I write this only as a paltry attempt at repayment, to remind those who may have forgotten that he was a real human being.

I know, for it was my friend who died.

'Let's Abolish Tradition!' Cry Campus Die-hards

By Kathryn Becker

Those who are new to Wartburg may not be aware that it is the grand old school of tradition. It has practices and customs uniquely its own, even teachers. Each year a faction of the student body goes through contortions to have tradition abolished. Not out-of-date ideas, mind you, but anything classified as TRADITION.

Contrary to popular thought, all traditions are not necessarily bad, nor should they be discontinued just because "it was done last year." To a certain extent, tradition is what makes a school what it is and gives it an individual quality. (We are about as individual as they come.)

Becker

★ One currently held tradition has been under discussion within recent years. Students and faculty share varying opinions of the two days in the school year which are called Outfly.

The teachers like Outfly because it gives them a chance to sleep late, spend the day with the children while their wives go shopping in Waterloo and do all those little household chores which they failed to do last spring (like put on the screens).

The students like Outfly because it gives them an opportunity to cram for the postponed test, get a head start on a term paper or write a long letter to the folks at home.

★ However, there are some who face the day with fear and trepidation. For them it is filled with mystery. What does this day hold in store for the freshmen? Up at dawn. Out on the field. 1-2-3-4. 1-2-3-4. Everybody, wash your face in the fishpond. ★ Oops!

★ But breakfast comes at last. No standing in line on this morning. (What upperclassman would be caught up at this time of day!) Oh, no, the freshmen don't stand — they crawl. (Reminds you of those sweet, carefree days of your childhood, doesn't it?) ★

★ Drink all your milk and eat hearty, my lads. The tug-of-war is next! Your whole future rests on the outcome. And your appearance, too. Those beanie, which have become so much a part of you, could continue to be your halo for three long, endless, tragic, hair-matted weeks until Homecoming. (Don't become overconfident, for the freshmen have lost.) ★

★ The rest of the day is up to you. Be sure to change clothes and dry your hair first. Then there's sleeping, studying (horrible thought), shopping, river-banking (don't forget to add that to your college vocabulary), wrestling, picnicking, hiking and other extracurricular activities that are classified as Fun and Games, College Style.

★ Well, that was another day shot, and another tradition. This is a part of college life that you will remember with fondness, after the scars have healed. Ask any sophomore.

Knights Meet Simpson Here Sat.

By Harry Jebson

AIR RAID!! No, the Russians aren't attacking. This is what to expect from the air-minded Simpson Redmen today when they meet the Knights at Schield Stadium.

Tony Spencer, Simpson's outstanding QB, leads a well-balanced team which is 2-0 in conference competition so far, beating Iowa Wesleyan and crushing Dubuque last week.

While the Redmen's greatest asset lies in their terrific passing game, scouting reports reveal they have a well-balanced running attack as well as the aerial circus of ringmaster Spencer.

COMING OFF THE solid defeat at Luther, Coach Norm Johansen plans no change in tactics or in personnel.

The guard situation, which was in doubt up till game time last week, will be capably handled by Jerry Schrader and Gayle Newlon, who is fully recovered from an injury suffered in pre-season drills.

Center Dave Van Ahn, injured at Luther, will be available by game time, but is being withheld from contact work in practice this week.

Speaking of last week's defeat at Luther, Coach Johansen said, "We got beat. We were out-weighted, outrun, outblocked and out everything, but we are making no excuses. This is undoubtedly one of the finest Luther teams in recent years."

The Knights are probably still "Wondering" what happened at Decorah as the Norse ran over them with little trouble.

KNIGHTS RECEIVED the opening kickoff and moved for two first downs; then the attack bogged down. After an exchange of punts, the Norse regained the ball, and as the quarter ended, two passes by Ibbotson, Luther's QB, moved the ball well into Knightland.

With less than three minutes gone in the second quarter,

I-M's Start Action Thurs.

By Dan Knobloch

Eleven teams will be competing in I.M. football this year, according to Dave Langrock, I.M. chairman. Schedules of games are posted in the housing units.

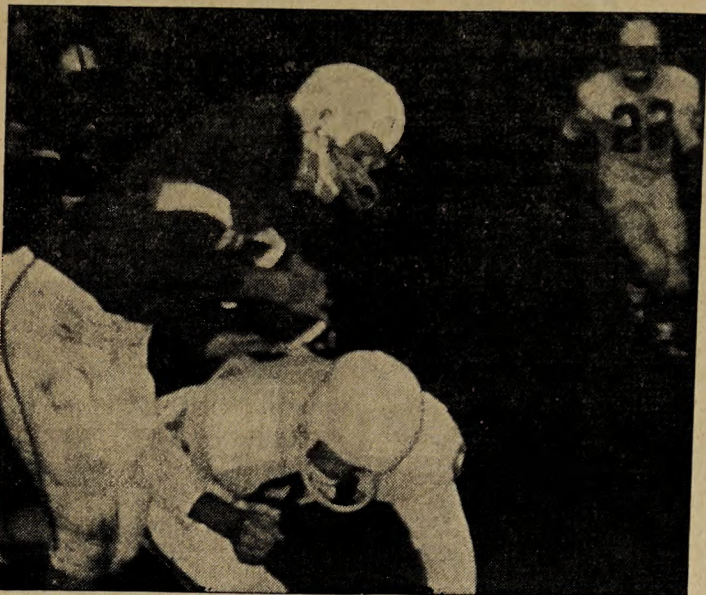

Because of lack of time and the large number of teams, four more than last year, each team will play only six games. In event of a tie for championship, there will be a play-off.

Action began Thursday, Sept. 26, when Clinton I and Basement went against North Hall and Clinton II played Clinton III. This morning's games featured Alpha House against Vollmer House and Grossmann II against Grossmann I and Basement.

This year's teams are well balanced and there should be quite a struggle for the championship. The top four teams right now appear to be Ketha House, defending champion from last year; Vollmer House; Clinton II; and North Hall.

All four have heavy lines and varied offenses. Any one of the other seven teams, however, could turn out to be a top contender.

ATTEMPTING TO DODGE the block of an on-coming Luther Norseman, a Wartburg griddier advances with the ball.

Jerry Wonders struck for the first of his touchdowns, and Jensen added the PAT to give the Norse a 7-0 lead.

Knights received the kick, and when an Eldon Ott pass hit Brent Bruns for a 15-yard gain, it looked as though the Knights were moving, but they stalled and Nielsen booted the second of eight punts in the evening.

After two exchanges of punts, the Norse picked up the ball near the mid-field stripe and moved in on the running of Jerry Wonders, with Wonders scoring from the one and Jensen adding his second PAT of the evening, making it 14-0 at half-time.

BY HALF-TIME Jerry Wonders had piled up 104 yards on the ground for Luther.

Third quarter saw the Norse score first with a pass to Hemp and with Jensen's PAT, making the score 21-0. Later in the quarter Wonders went over from the six, making it 28-0 with Jensen's fourth PAT.

Norse again moved into Knightland and John Benn finally going over on a spectacular reverse play, making it 34-0.

Finally, the Knights moved from the Norse 48, with Ott going over from the two, and Nielsen's extra point made it 34-7.

Harriers Show Rising Power

By Jack & Coon

Wartburg's rising power in cross country pinned a stunning defeat on Loras Thursday afternoon. Senior Lothar Columbus finished first followed closely by sophomore Verlyn Behm.

Loras placed men in third and fourth and Knight's Jim Rasmussen, sophomore, and Roger Palmer, senior, took fifth and sixth.

The 2.6 mile course was completed next by a Loras man with Wartburg's Gaylen Fick, freshman, clinching the meet. The final accounting read 21-33 in favor of the Knight's.

Wartburg harriers, coached by John Kurtt, opened their home season this morning by meeting

Simpson College on the Waverly golf course. Eight Knight runners are matching their running ability against a like number of Simpson Redmen.

Thus far, the Knights have been impressive in their smashing victory over Coe College at Cedar Rapids. Led by senior Lothar Columbus with a winning time of 16 minutes, 11 seconds, the seven-man unit completely shut out Coe with a 15 to 50 victory last Saturday.

A freshman runner, Gaylen Fick, came through with flying colors by managing to secure fourth place. Seniors Roger Palmer and George Max and junior Arlyn Ristau won the other three positions in the shut-out.

Axe Again In Jeopardy; Knights Behind 100 Pts.

By Mike Becker

Wartburg - 0 Luther - 100

This wasn't the score of the game Saturday night, but it is the score in the battle for the Battle-Axe.

Despite a real effort, the Jo-men were no match for the hungry Norsemen. The Jo-men were run over, passed over and out-played through the last three quarters of the game.

Pre-season troublespots showed through very clearly, with the Wartburg defensive line sometimes appearing non-existent. On offense, Wartburg couldn't get the ball moving because of the lack of blocking in the line. If there were any bright spots in the game, they were Dale Fridley's stalwart line play and the savage blocking of Brent Bruns.

Hardest thing about this game for the Jo-men will be forgetting about it. But in order to win, they must put this game out of their minds and take on the teams as they come.

Becker

In looking forward to the I.M. grid season, the race appears to be between three housing units. Ketha, defending champion, again appears to be the team to beat this year. It has last year's entire team intact with several new additions. Ketha's strongest competition should come from North Hall and Vollmer House. Ketha's Langrock to Bye passing combination is still the big weapon in its arsenal.

North Hall's hopes rest on the shoulders of Kurt Thorson, ace quarterback, who North Hall recruited over the summer. A big, strong line holds the hopes of the men from Vollmer House. With such men as Peich, Lange, Exner, Baldner and Stoeber, this team should be hard to move.

After two weeks of play, the Iowa Conference race has shown several surprises. William Penn, picked by the pre-season guessing experts to be one of the top teams, has already suffered two defeats.

Central and Luther have both lived up to pre-season expectations with consecutive victories. Buena Vista has proved the surprise team of the year by losing to Upper Iowa 6-0 and defeating William Penn.

Simpson, Knights' opponent today, has a two-game winning streak and will attempt to make it three against the Knights.

Talents, Interest EMV Objectives

"To give people an interest in the campus congregation and to have them share their talents is the purpose of the Every Member Visitation program," said Ed Paulson, committee head.

EMV representatives, selected at random, have been visiting the various housing units and trying to get a more active student membership.

"Even though there has been an added emphasis put on Bible study this year," commented Paulson, "the main point of concentration is still getting people interested and involved in the actual campus worship service."

This year pledges will be handled in a manner similar to last year's. Also, a quarterly financial report will be given to all members.

Talent cards have also been distributed. From these cards committees will select students for various duties. Workers are needed in such areas as dorm devotions, Bartels Home visitations and chapel speakers and liturgists.

Both programs lead to a commission and flight training as a pilot.

Lieut. Karen Wheeler, Woman Officer Selection officer, will be with the team to discuss the Woman Officer program with junior and senior women.

Upper-Class Pictures Scheduled

Taking of individual upper-classmen pictures has been scheduled for Oct. 8-10, according to Fortress Editor Myrna Lau.

Pictures of sophomores and juniors will be taken in Wartburg Hall basement. Seniors will have their pictures taken at the same time in Wartburg Hall lounge.

Organization pictures will be taken during the evenings of Oct. 8 and 9. Schedules for the organization pictures will be sent to each student at a later date. Advisers are also asked to be present, according to Miss Lau.

Freshmen, transfer students and faculty members who did not have their pictures taken earlier, may have them taken on one of the above dates.

A sign-up sheet will be posted across from the dean of students office. All upperclassmen are requested to sign up. Faculty members may have theirs taken whenever possible.

Charge for sophomore and junior pictures is one dollar. Seniors will make a three-dollar deposit.

Correction Given

The scholarships by the Wartburg Women's Club are given to both men and women and not to just women as was incorrectly stated last week.

Charles Ciorba acted as master of ceremonies at the freshmen talent show last week. His name was unintentionally omitted.
